What About Civil Defense?

The question, "What about Civil Defense?" has been asked numbers of times in the past few days by local citizens. John C. Cole, Civil Defense Director for Appomattox County, made the following report to the TIMES-

"A number of private Fall-Out Shelters have been built in this county," Cole reported. "No public shelter space is available that meets the protection minimum called for by U.S. Civil Defense recommendations."

Cole added that he has had conversations with School Supt. Earl Smith within the past few days concerning school children, in case of national emergency.

Fall - Out Shelter plans are offered free of charge by the Civil Defense Director to any interested person. These can be obtained either from Cole, the Post Office, or the TIMES VIR-

Watchful Waiting

The easing of tensions in the world have given the people of States a period of relief. Khrushchev has chosen to other than force the issue, the contention that his Cubasets were not of sufficient to risk an all-out shooting ame has not come yet. The be over until the bases being constructed will have and and no others begun. We ast in Communists agreegree, because they have not unless such pledges were of atches of the proposed a- from Khrushchev indicate confines its proposals to ons only. Just last week. Mr. Khrushchev denied that Russia had military bases in Cuba, yet by week's end he proposes to destory them. This is an example of Communist doubletalk. Nothing is said about Communist domination of Cuba, which may well continue as a bastion for Communist activity and propaganda in the America s. The United States would be shortsighted if it did not insist that Cuba be protected from Russian domination. Certainly no agreement should be made which would forever limit American action in Cuba or any Latin American Country.

While there is a respite in tension, let no one believe that the problem has been solved or that further tensions will not be fomented by the Communists. It is simply a lull in international intrigue.

The U. S. States Department will give serious consideration to the requests from India for military materiel, despite the past performance of the nation's leaders. A thorough understanding should precede our agreement to supply arms to India. If the U. S. is to maintain its position, some tangible considerations should be demanded prior to rendering support.

Encouragement

EVERY morning the sun rises, every spring the flowers bloom, every night the Great Dipper is just where it is supposed to be, most parents love their children, 98 per cent of our youngsters are not deliquents, most promises are faithfully kept, and there is still far more love than hate in the world, in spite of all the television and newspaper headlines.

He also learns that if only a thousand customers buy a product, without salesmanship, it may cost $10; but that, with imaginative selling and the consequent mass production, the consumer may get the same article for perhaps $2, or even less.

Answer to Overproduction

One of the major fears of business right now is overproduction. So, naturally, the Number One Problem is how to dispose of the enormous volume of both heavy and consumer items our industrial complex is capable of turning out. The answer is live-wire salesmen. I am not referring to the few get-rich-quick boys who only want to make a fast buck. They are here today and gone tomorrow. I do mean all those talented salesmen who learn how to get close to a prospect, how to gain his confidence, and how to give him real service. It is such men—and women too—who make up the great and important backlog of our merchandising empire.

A top-notch salesman has the true spirit of a missionary—boundless courage, complete honesty, unlimited energy, firmness, and outstanding adaptability. The good salesman must be able to rise above extreme frustration, to organize his own work program and to operate under relentless pressure. no salesman is a clock watcher; he only wishes his working day were a bit longer. In view of the wonderful qualities that a good salesman must have, you can't blame me for being shocked that only five per cent of the college youngsters in that survey seriously considered this glamorous field in their job preferences.

Sales Incomes Good

Whether a young man begins as a manufacturer's representative, wholesale marketer, specialty salesman, sales engineer, or retail merchandiser, his opportunities will be exactly what he makes them. If he is a good worker, he will probably want to work on commission. Then it will be entirely up to him whether he makes $25 a week or $250. Whatever the starting guarantees offered to college seniors, the average after five years is about $8,000. The average in sales management ranges between $12,000 and $15,000 in middle-sized companies, with some earnings reaching well above that level.

Salesmen as a group need no labor unions, since their hours and their earnings are dependent upon their own ambition. Young people should be aware, however, of the fact that salesmen are often the ones who work up to the top executive posts. Looking ahead over the next decade I believe that an enterprising young man entering the sales field at this time will have an excellent chance to get ahead rapidly, and at the same time to make an all-important contribution to our economy.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Bible Material: Psalm 19:7-11; 119:33-40; Acts 8:26-38; II Timothy 3:14-17; II Peter 1:16-21.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 19: 7-14.

The Bible

Lesson for November 4, 1962

Why the Bible? Some one might think that the Christian religion has a Bible just to keep up with the procession: for every religion in the world that has as many as a million members, has a Bible of some kind, and Christianity would be very odd if it did not. But this is not the reason we have a Bible. Is this the reason — that God can speak to man only in a written Word? Not at all. Did you ever stop to think that the whole Bible was written by persons who did not have a whole Bible? In fact, a great deal of the Bible is devoted to accounts of how God has been found in human lives, and of the laws and regulations for these quarters which are to govern the conduct of those who did not have a whole Bible. The reason for the Bible our need of a book of rules? No, the Bible itself does contain a few rules, but nearly every page of it is something else besides rules.

Inspired

One reason the church cherishes the Bible is because we believe it to be inspired by God himself. This does not mean that God dictated the various books of the Bible, certainly not in English. What we do mean is that God was at work in the entire process by which the Bible has come down to us. You would cherish every letter of one you love; if your loved one was (for instance) a teacher of art, you would no doubt be glad to have pictures or sculpture done by her pupils. Perhaps your friend the teacher did not paint this picture herself, but you can tell it must have been done by one of her pupils. "It looks liker her," you say. In the same way, God did not hold the pen for the writers of the Bible; but persons who have assuredly known God, have through the ages recognized the unmistakable marks of God's thought and action here. It is as difficult to "prove" the inspiration of Scripture as to prove that Mozart was a great musician. But both the Bible and music can be studied. Out of the study comes appreciation, and out of the appreciation grows the conviction of inspiration.

You can put up a shack on desert sands or at the edge of the swamp. But if what you want to erect is a skyscraper or a cathedral, you have to look for solid rock foundations.

Build on Rock, not Sand

So when you are building your life, as Jesus said, you need to build it on a rock, not on sand. We feel the need of a court of last resort, a judge above all judges. We need an accurate compass, we need a dependable light, a map with roads plainly marked. Now the Bible is all of these things, and people who have discovered its value have used such words as these about it. For the Protestant Christian of every kind, in spite of all our smaller or greater differences, the Bible stands as the supreme authority, even above the church. We do not find codes of rules here; we find living men and women who had authentically known God. In their lifeexperiences and in their reflections and conclusions, we find again the will of God for ourselves.

Some treasured heirlooms are valued highly because they are irreplaceable. So the Bible is invaluable, because it is unique. Most books answer some questions, the Bible answers the central questions. The Bible gives us the answers we do not find elsewhere. The Bible speaks to our most agonizing questionings, our most insatiable quests. What is my destiny, as a human being? Am I a kind of accident, alone with other human beings, or are we all part of the plan of God? How can I, poor, sick as I am, come to terms with the high God? What is God like? What can I believe about Him, and what does He want me to do? When I come to the inevitable end of this life, and face the last dark doorway, the last toll-gate, what lies beyond? When I stand at the graveside of a loved one, must I stand forever alone? When I look into the vast reaches of space to the galaxies receding ever beyond our reach, do I find there only mindless energy or do I dare to see above all, above all, infinite and eternal love? The Bible and the Bible alone gives us the answers to such questions.

Railway Will Pay Dividend

ROANOKE —The Norfolk and Western Railway reported Oct. 21, a third quarter net income of $15,596,818, bringing earnings for the first nine months of 1962 to $43,841,810, or $5.84 per share of common stock.

THE NINE - MONTH earnings of the N&W compared with earnings of $40,867,262, of $5.43 per common share, for the January-September period last year.

The railroad earned $2.66 per common share for the quarter as compared with $1.76 for this year's first quarter and $1.98 for the second. Third quarter operating revenues were $57.6 million for an operating ratio of 58.3 per cent.

N&W President Stuart T. Saunders said the outlook for the rest of this year is good

Coal earnings have shown a steady increase during October and now are at levels slightly above the same period last year, Saunders said he expects fourth quarter results to compare favorably with the Virginia Railway in December, 1959.

Revenue carloadings for the third quarter totaled 401,223 cars, 7.8 per cent below the same quarter last year, but carloadings for the first three quarters were six per cent higher than for the same period last year.

Hix And Martin On Committee

John W. Hix, of Route 1, Pamplin and John A. Martin, of Route 2, Gladstone, have been appointed as members of the three - man Appomattox county Farmers Home Administration committee, the agency's County Supervisor, Hunter P. Evans, announced. The other member serving on the committee is H. Elliott Torrence, of Route 2, Appomattox.

The local Farmers Home Administration county committee reviews applications, by farmers and other rural families for six different types of agricultural, housing and water loans made in Appomattox county. In addition, the committee advises with the county supervisor regarding the adapting of national loan policies to local conditions.

Mr. Hix is a grade A dairyman in the Hixburg community, operating as Hix Brothers. Mr. Martin is a tobacco and general farmer in the Liberty Chapel community. The farm is operated as Martin Brothers. Other than tobacco they have a beef cow herd.

County Supervisor Evans says that the new committeemen's practical farming experience will enable them to make a real contribution to the county committee's actions when loan applications are reviewed.

Appomattox County Library

From time immemorial the last night of the month of October has been known as Hallowe'en or all Hallow Even, and of all the nights of the year this is the one upon which all supernatural influences prevail. It is the great anniversary of fairies, gnomes, elves, and witches. The spirit of the dead wander abroad and join companies of devils, and witches and mischief making elves which dance about the world, bringing terror and confusion to wonder - stricken mortals. Many of the customs with which we observe Hallowe'en today are pagan in their origin and date back far more than a thousand years. The modern custom of associating nuts, fruits and grains with Hallowe'en probably originated with the old festival of Pomona. The people of Southern Europe used to hold a feast about the first of November in honor of the Roman goddess of the fruit of trees.

One use of the witche's broomstick in Hallowe'en symbols is derived from the old Scottish superstition that the witches on Hallowe'en left in their beds a magic stick which resembled themselves. When the night's festival were over, the witches would fly up the chimney and throughout the sky on a broomstick.''

This is the nicht o'Hallowe'en
When a' the witchie micht be seen:
Some of them black; some of them green,
Some of them like a turkey bean"

This week the students of Oakville school would like to share some book reading suggestions with you.

Cindy De Pew of the 7th grade writes about The Island of the Blue Dolphins, which is a John Newberry Award book by Scott O'Dell for the year 1961. "This is a true story of the early 1800's which takes place off the coast of California. It tells of a twelve year old girl, Karana, who spent eighteen years alone on an island. Her younger brother, Ramo, had been killed by a pack of wild dogs. Karna made many friends during these eighteen lonely years. Among these was the leader of the wild dog pack. I hope you will read this book and if you do, I'm sure that you shall enjoy the adventure of Karana."

Walter Norcross, also of the 7th grade in Mr. Clement's room, suggests for a real thriller, read Southpaw Fly Hawk by Addison Rand. "Eddie Hadley, a baseball player in a litte miner's town was a hero. He was the best pitcher in the town and he went out on his own for Big baseball. Read it to see what a success he became!

Sylvia Gunter writes about, Mystery in the Pirate Oak by Helen Fuller Orton who is one of our "most" favorite authors of mystery. "It's a big surprise to Chad and Ellie Turner when they discover a double mystery connected with the old oak house where they have their tree house. Lights at night and sounds of digging bring out an old legend of pirate treasure. Read this for real "spooky" pleasure.

Other books enjoyed by Mr. Clements's 6th and 7th grade are as follows: Hot Rod by Henry Gregor Felsen; Pocahontas, Brave Girl by Flora Warren Seymour; Walter Reed; Boy Who Wanted to Know by Helen Boyd Higgins and Will and Charlie Mayo; Doctor's Boys by Marie Hammontree.

Among the readers in the 3rd and 4th grades in Mrs. Alvis' room, we find that Martha Alice Harvey liked the picture book, My Mother is the Most Beautiful Woman in the World by Becky Reyher. It is a folk-tale from an old Russian Proverb' which goes like this, "We do not love people because they are beautiful, but they seem beautiful to us because we love them,"

Vicki Elizabeth Moore in the same room especially liked the picture book "Follow the Sunset" — both of these books have to be seen and examined to appreciate the lovely illustrations.
